NOTRE DAME MEN WILL HAVE MANY YELLS SATURDAY

Great Plans Being Laid for Game With Indians on Carter Field—Several Are Injured.

Enthusiasm over the game with Haskell here Saturday is running high at Notre Dame and nightly sessions of the students are being held at which songs and yells, to be used during the contest, are being rehearsed.

Saturday will see a revival in cheering at Notre Dame. At least, this is the belief of those in charge of the cheer work and the student body in general. Several Notre Dame loyalty songs have been re-printed and handed out to the students and these, together with the list of cheers, are undergoing a strenuous workout at the hands of the yell masters and students.

In past years, numerous songs have been written by students, but they have not been used to any extent recently. Some of these have been unearthed and presented again to the students.

The first cheer session was held on Tuesday night under the leadership of Yell Master Gargen. Two songs were practiced then and another one was practiced at last night's meeting. The songs rehearsed Tuesday were "Battling For Victory," the words of which were written to the tune of "Marching Through Georgia," by T. Decey, a former student, and "The Fighting Team," John F. Shea, another former student, wrote the words for the latter song to the air of "John Brown's Body." Rev. Eugene Burke, C. S. C., accompanied the students on the piano during the rehearsals.

Plans are being made to make the cheering big features of the Haskell and South Dakota games.

Injuries to four members of the varsity squad have weakened the Notre Dame squad considerably during the past few days. John Miller, Malone, Halmes and King are all on the injured list and may not be able to appear in Saturday's game.

The choice for the right halfback position has apparently been between Miller and Malone. Coach Harper sprung a surprise in last night's secret practice when he shifted "Young Dutch" Bergman heretofore a quarterback, to the right halfback position on the first eleven.

Bergman's open field running was a feature of the game against Alma last Saturday and the little fellow may develop into a valuable halfback. Whether or not he is used in Saturday's game, he will make a valuable all-round substitute backfield man, and Coach Harper faces the necessity of developing some good second string men to be ready to take the places of the regulars in case of injury.

The second and third string backs, who were used in the scrimmage against the freshmen Tuesday, did not show up well in the workout and Coach Harper was thus presented with a difficult problem.

Jerry Jones, a linesman, may be shifted to the fullback position on the second team. Coach Harper is seriously considering the feasibility of the change.

Bachman, at fullback on the first team, is showing improvement in his work at that position. The big fellow is hitting the line lower and getting more drive than he has shown before and his work in interference is also improving.

"Ducky" Halmes and King, both of whom are injured, are linemen. Halmes was not used on the first team in signal drill last night and McInerney, the big South Bend youth, was at his place at right tackle. King is a substitute tackle and had been developing rapidly, previous to his injury.

Last night's workout consisted principally of signal drill. Rooters were again barred from the ground. The team continued to show an improvement in the speed with which they ran off the formations.

Today there is scheduled to be a scrimmage between the first varsity and the freshmen, but it will be in secret.

FANS DOWNCAST, CAN'T GET INTO BASEBALL PARK

Requests For Seats Total 135,000 and Many Are Turned Down—Speculators Are Busy.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Oct. 7.—About 99 per cent of the adult male population of Philadelphia was gloomy and grouchy today because it was not invited to drop around to the office of the Phillies at 9 a. m. and partake in the distribution of reserved seats.

When the club officers opened today there was a mob of over 6,000 outside waiting to present its invitations and its cash in exchange for the precious pasteboreds that will admit to the world series comforts in this town between these phenomena.

Phillies and Bill Carrigan's grand collection of Red Sox.

Clerks in the club offices declared today that the requests for tickets for each game made by mail or telephone had totalled 135,000 up to last night, and that more than 5,000 letters, requesting probably 15,000 additional tickets arrived in the morning mail but had not been opened.

The club officials ignored practically all requests from out-of-town fans, favoring the home fans, in keeping with the announced policy of Pres't William H. Baker.

One of the peculiarities of the distribution today was this: Most Produce Cash.

Despite the fact that the letters of the lucky applicants enclosed certified checks or money orders, the club officials informed the "elect" in the notices sent out last night that the tickets would be delivered upon payments of currency and that the checks and money would be returned within a day or two. This procedure, an unusual one, caused considerable comment but none of the "winners" demurred. They resurrected the cash and rushed to a place in the line in front of the club offices.

The distribution today included about 3,800 box seats at $5 per, about 3,500 grandstand seats at $3 per, and 2,000 pavilion seats at $2. The total reserved seat capacity is 4,000 box seats, 5,000 grandstand seats and 2,000 pavilion seats, but about 1,500 seats for each game were held out for the members of the national commission, the club officials and the players.

The total cash taken in by the club today was close to $9,000, each patron being forced to buy tickets for three games.

Speculators Present.

A small army of ticket speculators, most of them from New York, arrived in town early today and were boasting that they would make a killing.

"The efforts of the club officials to keep us from getting tickets will be useless," one "spec" said. "We'll get a bigger bunch this year than ever before, and you see that we can shake down the dear old public for a fat bank roll for every pair of tickets."

There was not much interest in the Athletic world series battles in comparison with that in this series and are sure we can get double and triple the prices this year that we did last.

"We'll have a big bunch of tickets before 4 o'clock this afternoon and anybody who gets a pair of them for less than $50 will be one very lucky bird."

The town is full of persons who hoped for tickets and did not get them and as a result there is much wailing and gnashing of teeth, so to speak.

Also many harsh words are being uttered in the general direction of the Phillie club owners. One of the disappointed was Joe O'Rourke of Albany, N. Y., the man who "discovered" Grover Cleveland Alexander. He is broken hearted over the thought that he may not see his "find" perform in the stellar battles of baseball.

The brother of Police Capt. Kenney is another disappointed individual. He came all the way from the Philippine Islands to see the series, feeling confident that the world would be able to secure a ticket for him. But the so-called "throwing down" of the police department's request for tickets has made Capt. Kenney ticketless and his brother faces the prospect of having made a fruitless trip of 15,000 miles and a fruitless expenditure of $500.

CHALLENGE IS RECOGNIZED

Fed President Informed Letter Reached Its Destination.

CHICAGO, Oct. 7.—Organized baseball has recognized, at least, the challenge for the world's championship which Pres't Weegman of the pennant winning Chicago Federal League club sent to the National commission. The owner of the Whales received the following communication:

Mr. Charles Weegman, Chicago, Ill.
Dear Sir: I am in receipt of your telegram of Oct. 4, and have sent a copy thereof to my colleagues for their information and consideration.

Respectfully,
August Hermann.
"I'm glad they recognized the challenge at any rate," said Pres't Weegman. "I hear today that they were not making any plans for challenging the Federal league park to handle world series crowds."

ESSICK DEMANDS $350

Claim Wheeling Failed to Pay For Ball Players.

FORT WAYNE, Ind., Oct. 7.—Suit has been started against the Wheeling Athletic association and Pres't Louis Hellbroer of the Central league, by William E. Essick, who charges that Wheeling has never paid him for the services of several ball players. Essick demands $350.

THEIR DESTINATIONS.
A group of workmen were talking politics, when one of the disputants turned to a friend who had remained silent during the argument.

"Ere, Bill," he said, "wot's your opinion?"

"I ain't a-goin' to say," said Bill dozedly. "Me and Hennerly Green thrashed it out once before."

"What did you arrive at?" asked the first.

"Well," said Bill, "Hennerly, 'e arrived at the 'ospital an' I arrived at the police station."—Ladies Home Journal.
